

A new nonprofit can help equip your classroom!

We face it every day: a lack of funding and devastating budget cuts leave many schools without the supplies teachers need to help their students explore their potential and excel.

Too many dedicated teachers spend their own money on classroom materials, and it's still not enough.

ClassWish.org offers a simple alternative:

- Teachers visit the site to create a Wish List of the things they need to equip great classrooms, as easily as shopping online.
- ClassWish helps attract parents, alumni, local businesses and other potential supporters to see exactly what is needed and to inspire their help.
- Contributions are tax-deductible, and ClassWish provides a receipt.
- ClassWish sends the supplies directly to the school.

The result? Teachers get the support they need. Parents and communities are engaged in supporting classrooms and funding the things they care about. And everyone is united in helping our children learn, grow and perform at their best.

See how easy it is to get the things you need at:

